I am using the default solution pattern of Kibana-4.5.1 for getting the start time for a user. My expectation is that it needs only one elasticsearch query which should get the start time of a user's data. GET useDefaults=false&o=index,%2f_now,group,metric,by,is,on&fields=start_time If I use the suggested approach it search for each data record. GET useDefaults=false&o=index,%2f_now,group,metric,by,is,on& fields=@timestamp,%2fip,ip,hostname,method,path,bytes,protocol,start_time

Is there a way to get the start time of a user's data without the need to do it for each data record? A:
